

Cost Accounting for Fiber Optic Cable Laying

Overview

Buyers typically pay for fiber laying by combining material costs, labor time, and permitting plus trenching or aerial support fees. Depreciation refers to the process of allocating the cost of a tangible asset over its useful life. In preparing this second edition of the Fiber Deployment Cost report, Cartesian gathered inputs from a wide variety of firms building. Several factors influence how much you'll pay for fiber optic cables: Fiber Type and Count: Single-mode fiber typically costs $0. Higher strand counts increase costs proportionally—a 12-strand fiber. Fiber optic cables are high-tech communications cables that carry information like bursts of light along extremely thin glass or plastic strands, providing high-speed, high-bandwidth connectivity with little loss of signal. The main cost drivers are trench depth, fiber count and type (single-mode vs multi-mode), conduit requirements, and local permitting rules.
